Pertinent Paragraphs

Washington's "400" and the Texas senate last week became all hot and bothered over the afternoon tea given by Mrs. Herbert Hoover at which Mrs. Oscar De Priest, wife of the colored congressman from Illinois, was present. It seems to us that our much advertised democracy is a bit left-handed. We give the negro a vote, accept his successfupl candidates for public office, and then proceed to ostracise our "public servant" and his family.

"Scarface Al" Capone, marking time in the Holmesburg county jail at Philadelphia, offers $50,000 to any lawyer or group of lawyers who can effect his release before his sentence of one year is up. There are many attorneys who would stop at little to secure that sum of money—and it is reported that the district attorney is equally determined to frustrate any efforts that may be made toward the release of Mr. Capone. Personally, we believe the Chicago racketeer sets too high a value upon his time.

To American people it must seem strange that the wishes of any one person should govern the length of dresses worn by the ladies of any land. Such is the case in England where the queen caused consternation recently by appearing in skirts several inches shorter than she habitually wore. A great hoisting of hems was immediately indulged in by other ladies of the court.

A Brazilian diamond valued at $500,000 has been purchased by American jewelers. The rock will be a bigger and better mark for the Chicago lads to shoot at.

Ice men and refrigerator salesmen have for the past two days been rubbing their hands with satisfaction over the fact that their wares are again in demand. Few will complain of this added expense to living, for without the heat there would be mighty slim pickings in the valley at harvest time.

California motorists are up in arms over the stock car speed trials that are permitted on the highways of the state. Race drivers, out to make records, drive fast cars at 70 or more miles per hour while the private citizen driving at 41 miles per hour is liable to arrest. Besides being unfair it is very dangerous—to the other 2,000,000 automobiles which use the public highways of the state.

On the other hand we have the case of the Chicago man who was arrested on an Indiana highway for driving so slowly as to hold up the traffic. He was the first man to be arrested in the Indiana campaign against slow driving ,and he paid a fine of $5. California could do with a similar campaign.

Sidi Mohammed Ben Yusef, youthful sultan of Morocco, arrived on the Riviera for a vacation. None of his harem accompanied him. He is on a vacation.

That's all.

VACATION TIME

No more pencils, no more books,
No more teacher's saucy looks!

That's what the school boys and girls used to chant when they began their summer vacations. Nowadays they may chant it out of respect to tradition, but the emotion that inspired such a verse is gone.

For the modern school boy and girl doesn't think of teacher as a person with "saucy looks." The plane of the profession of teaching has been raised to a marvelous degree. New educational methods seek to enlist the co-operation rather than the fear of the pupils. Punishments are less severe and the work is made more interesting. School is not such a bad place after all . . . Shakespeare's boy going "unwillingly to school" is different from the pupil of today, anxious to learn and to play under proper, wise direction.

Neverthless, the children are all happy at the prospect of almost three months of complete freedom. It is the duty of parents to see that their children derive every ounce of benefit possible from their summer vacations, so that they may return to school next fall refreshed in mind and body and ready to do their best.

GENE TUNNEY, AUTHOR

From Italy comes the rumor that Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, who has been visiting with the world-famous playwright, George Bernard Shaw, contemplates entering the literary field.

George Bernard Shaw is said to have given Tunney encouragement in this new ambition. And so the world is to have a new thrill, seeing a dyed-in-the-wool pugilist turn to the gentle art of letters.

Of course, a not altogether new thrill. Almost every successful sportsman has written articles on sports, or had such articles written for him by ghost writers. However, from Tunney we do not expect a story of his experience in the ring.

For Tunney's mental makeup is different than that of most pugilists. He typifies the new school of athletes, whose minds are developed as carefully as their bodies. Tunney reads and understands Shakespeare and Shaw and has the friendship of such literary artists as Thornton Wilder.

Tunney evidently wants to become one of the world's classics—and if he should succeed it will be among the most remarkable phenomena of modern times, for who would have dreamed that a hand capable of delivering knockout punches could also be employed in the delicate art of penning masterpieces. We have yet to see whether Tunney's pen is more powerful than his punch.

VERY LITTLE

of Campbell's commercial printing escapes THE PRESS job printing department, yet recently there have come to our attention several examples of the graphic art which are distinctly the work of a rank amateur. Naturally, this office harbors an aversion for the class of work mentioned—for several reasons. A stranger might attribute the job to the only visible printing plant. The amateur must cut prices to get work. He lowers the local standard of printing. He infringes on the livelihood of the legitimate printer who has many dollars invested in his plant.

It does not pay to sacrifice quality for the sake of a few pennies — and that is what happens when one patronizes the amateur printer.

The GENERAL TIRE
—goes a long way to make friends

Speed

If you like an open road, in a car that can travel as fast as you care to drive it, you will enjoy it twice as much on Generals. If you have ever felt your tires at the end of a fast run, you know that speed means heat. By using only the purest friction and tread rubber in generous quantities, General reduces internal friction (the cause of heat in tires) to a minimum. With Generals you can travel far and fast with the comforting knowledge that they won't wither from heat when you need them most.
